WHO I AM - WHAT I STAND FOR

I was a councillor in Essex before moving to Surrey for a job in engineering management, keeping my defence projects to time, cost and specification.

Moving across into telecoms took me overseas setting up fibre-optic and mobile phone networks and discovering how other countries deal with their infrastructure.

Cost control is of prime importance at all levels of government. Is an activity really necessary?

We, the people, should always receive a printed summary financial statement every year with our council tax demands, which is a more effective way of communicating vital financial information than hiding it on a website, and more useful than pretty magazines.

Surrey's emblem is a pair of oakleaves, and I want to see more retention, care and extension of our native heaths and woodlands, however small the plot. Besides our native oaks and yews we need hollies and other bushes to provide nesting sites for our songbirds, plus blackthorns and brambles for their berries; even nettles are homes to caterpillars, without which we would have no butterflies.

Having served as a public member of Network Rail, a school governor, and a consumer rep on water and health committees (as well as a few years running a trades union) I am keen to help the people of Surrey as best I can, starting with ensuring bus routes have the right stop signs.
